

Transgender Equality

What is your duty?

A workshop for public sector
professionals

London - 14 October

Event Overview

The Equalities Act 2010 has expanded on transgender legal duties, and Ofsted and the compliance functions of the Equality and Human Rights Commission reinforce those duties for public bodies.

This workshop is for public sector professionals. It provides expert guidance on how to develop lawful and effective policies and ensure good practice.

Benefits

- Understand the nature of gender variance
- Develop lawful and respectful transgender policies, monitoring procedures, practices and equality impact assessments
- Learn from the personal experiences of the transgender workshop facilitators
- Prepare for the consequences when an employee or service user is perceived as transgender
- Use the new transgender e-learning resource

Who should attend?

Board members, executives, senior managers, managers, senior officers, HR specialists, E & D practitioners and user/staff representatives who are responsible for the care of transgender employees and service users.

Facilitators

The facilitators have extensive experience of training in the education, health, and criminal justice sectors, as well as in local and central government.

- Bernard Reed OBE & Terry Reed OBE – GIRES
- Laura Miles – University and College Union
- Nicole Mack – Genderactive
- Harri Cole Weeks – Independent Consultant
